Letter from LMIDTF:

To the Investment and Economic Prosperity Committee:

The origins of the London Task Force and similar initiatives province-wide can be traced to a series of studies commissioned by Music Canada including, “The Next Big Bang: A New Direction for Music in Canada,” and “Accelerating Toronto’s Music Industry Growth: Leveraging Best Practices from Austin, Texas.” These studies concluded emphatically that music is good for business – that a thriving cultural scene driven by music not only generates revenue through music tourism, but perhaps more importantly serves to create ideal conditions to retain and attract a young, highly skilled work force. This in turn creates an attractive climate for job creation, specifically in the high tech industry. It was also shown that these results are due to vision, co-ordination and messaging as much as a reasonable amount of community funding.

Due largely to the impetus of Music Canada, the Province of Ontario launched the Ontario Music Fund (OMF) on October 28th, 2013. The OMF is a $45 million grant program over three years, intended to help support and create jobs as well as position the province as a leading destination for recording and performing. The fund is intended to drive growth and innovation in the music industry by supporting home-grown talent, music companies and other industries that support the music sector; such as festivals, events and music venues (Please refer to “Appendix B: Ontario Music Fund (OMF)”; and “Appendix C: Music Industry Organizations in Canada” for more details). Music Canada President Graham Henderson has visited London three times over the past two years to introduce the studies and the OMF, in order to explain their community and business benefits, and encourage the city to find its own solutions and initiatives. As recent as March 20, 2014 Mr. Henderson attended an evening event with various local music industry stakeholders here in London, where he discussed how music can be leveraged to contribute to broader community goals; described its power as a city/community builder, and what cities are doing to become more “music and musician-friendly” (Please refer to Appendix D: A look at other cities and their music initiatives).
Based on the results of the Music Canada studies, in his presentations Mr. Henderson clearly delineated the need to accelerate the development of the music sector. He strongly advocated a fundamental change in approach and thinking by governments Province-wide, stressing the benefits of recognizing and treating the music sector as any other business sector. If approached as a key Economic Development asset, music has shown to be a successful driver of tourist dollars, new industry, job creation and ultimately financial prosperity and quality of life in the community.

As a result, the City of London pursued its own initiative and supported the development of London’s Music Industry Development Task Force (LMIDTF); whose purpose was to spearhead the development of a community wide comprehensive music strategy intended to promote and support music in London (Please refer to Appendix F: LMIDTF Terms of Reference).

The Task Force consists of the Mayor or designate and 22 individuals who represent every facet of music in London, and is composed of members representing a range of sub-sectors, and all genres of music, within the industry:
• Independent Artists;
• Events and Venues;
• Artist and Business Management, Representation and Marketing;
• Music Creation;
• Associations, Organizations and Partners; and,
• Music Awards Programs.

The below noted LMIDTF members were selected based on their experience and understanding of the local music scene:

In addition, the City of London has provided considerable resources and support to this initiative; Cathy Dziedzic of the Corporate Investments and Partnerships Office, Robin Armistead of the Culture Office, both from the City of London, as well as Andrea Halwa of the London Arts Council, have been present as resources and organizers.

In addition, an executive facilitator, Robert Breen, who works as the Career Development and Industry Relations instructor at the Ontario Institute of Audio Recording Technology (OIART) in London, and is the present Vice President of the Audio Engineering Society (AES) (Eastern USA and Canada), was brought in to guide the process.

Ultimately, this is an Industry-led task force, and the LMIDTF is pleased to share their conclusions with the City’s Investment and Economic Prosperity Committee. LMIDTF looks forward to a long term, productive collaboration in order to achieve its goals.

Respectfully Submitted,
London Music Industry Development Task Force

iv. Objectives of LMIDTF:

- To guide initiatives by supporting the economic and cultural development of London’s music industry;
- To develop recommendations and rationale of the strategies and actions proposed to be undertaken in order to support growth and innovation in London’s music industry by: exchanging ideas, discussing opportunities and challenges, as well as providing input and advice;
- To strengthen and embrace London’s diversity and cultural identity;
- To consider the health, competitiveness and viability of London’s music sector;
- To achieve long-term sustainable economic growth and job creation;
- To develop, support and showcase talent;
- To enhance local and regional positioning and branding of the city and its music sector;
- To support a dynamic and innovative business climate;
- To promote collaboration; and
- To build partnerships.
Background:

The creation of London’s Music Industry Development Task Force is aligned with the City of London 2011-2014 Strategic Plan in the following manner:

A Strong Economy: Develop our skilled workforce; Establish a focused strategy for the downtown; Build partnerships with key private, institutional and community partners.

A Vibrant and Diverse Community: Strengthen and embrace London’s diversity and cultural identity; Preserve and celebrate arts, culture and heritage; Build the vibrancy of the downtown including special events.

A Caring Community: Support individuals at all stages of life, from newborns to the elderly, and from newcomers to the established.

The Task Force is further aligned through the June 15, 2011 Mayor’s Economic Prosperity Council Report, in which the following was identified" there is money in arts, culture and entertainment".

Furthermore, as outlined in the May 8, 2012 “Establishing the Economic Baseline” presentation, submitted to the Investment and Economic Prosperity Committee, there are five areas of focus needed to grow London’s Economy:

1. Business Retention, Growth & Attraction
2. Retain & Attract Talent
3. Develop Labour Force
4. Community Economic Development
5. Visitor Attractions

The outlined areas of focus are directly related to the 10-year plan and the objectives set out by the Investment and Economic Prosperity Committee; which are intended to help move London’s economy forward faster and ensure long term prosperity for the local community. The proposed task force would promote all five of the above noted areas of focus as it relates to the music industry.
This initiative supports the implementation of London’s Cultural Prosperity Plan and its Strategic Directions. In other words, the Music Industry Task Force strategic priorities will further the following 4 Strategic Directions of the Plan:

1. Strengthen the Economic Growth of Culture
2. Support Cultural Programming
3. Leverage London’s Cultural Assets
4. Celebrate and Promote Culture

It’s important to note that London’s Cultural Prosperity Plan, which was adopted by Council March 5, 2013 and funded in part by the Province of Ontario, is a strategic policy framework document that provides a collective vision and direction for culture in London. Culture includes the Arts Sector and music is considered a discipline of the Arts.

The Vision for London’s Cultural Prosperity Plan is:

“Culture is at the heart of our thriving and vibrant city. Culture is recognized by our city for its important role in building economic and community growth, attracting and retaining talent, informing municipal decision making processes and elevating the profile of London as a regional cultural centre.”

In 2011 the Culture Sector contributed an estimated $540 million to the City of London’s Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and employed an estimated 7,703 cultural workers. Specifically culture supports London’s economy in 4 ways: by attracting cultural workers, which in turn attract creative sector employers and jobs; by contributing to the retention of local talent through quality of life improvements; by generating new business opportunities, particularly when culture workers are equipped with entrepreneurial skills; and by attracting new business ventures and markets in the city. Cultural investment including investment in the Music Sector will have broader implications for community vibrancy and economic development of London.
To ensure the City of London benefits from the Ontario Government's plan to invest in people and infrastructure, as well as support a dynamic and innovative business climate through the Ontario Music Plan, the first step in such a process was to develop a Music Industry Task Force with clearly defined terms of reference.

As a result, on February 11, 2014 Municipal Council resolved that a Music Industry Development Task Force be created, to oversee a local music strategy that will support the Province of Ontario Music Fund initiative in London.

In accordance with the LMIDTF Terms of Reference (Appendix F), the London’s Music Industry Development Task Force was announced on June 5th, 2014, and is composed of 23 members consisting of: The Mayor as the Chair and 22 Members representing one or more of the below noted sectors of the music industry:

Independent Artists Events and Venues
Artist and Business Management, Representation and Marketing
Music Creation
Associations, Organizations and Partners Music Awards Programs

The Task Force was tasked with playing a key role in the development of a community wide comprehensive music strategy intended to promote and support music in London. The objective of the group was to guide initiatives by supporting the economic and cultural development of London’s music industry; to exchange ideas; to discuss opportunities and challenges, identifying London’s needs and strengths, to position the sector to work together collaboratively; to provide input and advice; and to collectively take advantage of the current Ontario Music Fund, in order to support growth and innovation in London’s Music Industry.
Swot Analysis:

Strengths

Strengths of the current music scene in London as identified by LMIDTF:

- London is a great affordable place for an artist to live, with reasonable housing costs.
- A North American “test market”.
- Geographic advantage - between Toronto, Buffalo and Detroit:
  - Easy Artist Crossings – within 2 hours of 3 border crossings.
- Talent; a rich musical history and an exceptional pool of local artists and musicians, which can be promoted.
- Local radio station 98.1 Free FM provides an avenue to promote local talent through regular contests.
- Two campus radio stations – CHRW 94.9 Radio Western, 6x FM Fanshawe.
- London venues are affordable.
- World class venues, nationally and internationally recognized for excellence in their size and format, such as: Budweiser Gardens, The Aeolian Hall, and The London Music Hall.
- 3 nationally and internationally renowned production schools – Fanshawe, Western, OIART.
- Growing Creative class, emerging digital sector – includes gaming and internet based business.
- Already world renowned for Sports Tourism.
- Pool of mentor talent in London is immense and convenient compared to other cities.
- Mechanisms to recognize and acknowledge outstanding musicians, including the Mayor’s New Year’s Arts Award, The Jack Richardson Music Awards, The London Music Awards and the Kiwanis Music Festival.
- The London Arts Council is a resource for the music community.
- IATSE Local 828 (International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees).
- Annual Events and Festivals including; TD Sunfest, and Home County Music & Arts Festival, Rock The Park, Gone Country Music Festival, Western Fair.
- Blues, Bluegrass and Jazz Societies.
- A healthy EDM and Dance Scene.
Weaknesses of the current music scene in London as identified by LMIDTF

- Transportation needed to connect different neighbourhoods, college and university campuses.
- Need to attract students off campus into the community.
- Musicians undercut each other, accepting less money in order to get exposure and work.
- Bands are playing too late – club performances tend to begin later in the evening and finish between 1-2am (London Transit shuts down before bars close).
- Stiff competition for the entertainment dollar, entertainment is in the home, live music is competing with the ease of the internet to get music and entertainment.
- Festivals need to include more local talent.
- The public needs to place more value on live and recorded music, rather than downloading, streaming for free.
- Concern about the cost of development charges for new venues and small businesses.
- Disconnect between Western, Fanshawe, and OIART.
- Artists need more knowledge about the music scene in London – the music industry in London needs to learn to communicate with itself.
- Limited advertising.
- Women and minorities not well represented in the industry as compared to older white males - need to integrate more.
- Bylaws and Regulations are not always consistent, certain Bylaws that impact the Music Industry limit the development of the sector e.g.: Festivals versus Bars - different rules governing patios vs. festivals.
- Artists don’t know how to make proposals to music publishers.
- Space issue; where do youth go to perform and hang out?
- London needs more small performance venues and provide incentives for small businesses to create these spaces.
- Centennial Hall is nearing the end of its usable life – and London lacks a world class space dedicated strictly to music.
- There are underutilized city-owned music venues, including Wolf Hall, Centennial Hall, The London Convention Centre.
- We are blessed with talent, however we need to showcase it better.
- London’s rich musical history is not promoted.
- London has not differentiated the non-for-profit Arts sector from the Music Industry as an driver of Economic Development.
Opportunities/Key Priorities

Key Priorities to strengthen the London music scene as identified by LMIDTF

1. Create a Permanent Ongoing Volunteer Music Committee

Keep the London Music Industry Development Task Force together as a volunteer London Music Committee - to support the initiatives in this document and help to execute additional recommendations produced by the group in the future may form subcommittees or task forces, or invite additional members from the music industry.

2. Create a Permanent London Music Position and/or Office

Hire a designated music coordinator person/office, to network with the music community and liaise with the outside community via volunteer groups, connecting with government and business and working with not-for-profit and for-profit sectors. This would be a pilot project with an initial 2 year mandate, subject to review and renewal after two years, with the goal of evolving over time into a not-for-profit or a public-and-privately funded office. Office location is to be determined based on cost and functionality.

The music officer position requires experience, connections and a unique skill set in the music sector. Part Economic Developer, part Marketing Director, part Business Manager, and entirely Music Fan, this individual should possess the vision, energy and communication skills to enable London to capitalize fully on the vast array of opportunities presented by a growing Music Sector and London’s unique positioning for success; a recognized music Education and Production hub, a geographic location within a two hour drive of Canada’s largest population density, an inexpensive cost of living, and a connected, educated potential work force of thousands who study here each year.

The LMIDTF requests from the city an initial two-year funding of up to $150,000 per year ($300,000 total) to cover salary, costs and expenses in order to enable London to attract the talent required to achieve these ambitious goals. Additionally, the 22 experienced and accomplished members of the LMIDTF have agreed to continue on working together as the London Music Committee in order to provide support, legwork and local expertise to this new position.
Priorities for this office may include:

- Execute the LMIDTF Key Priorities with the assistance of the London Music Committee and various work-groups as needed;
- Seek funding for music related initiatives in London;
- Co-ordinate volunteer organizations;
- Co-ordinate music resources and websites;
- Oversee marketing efforts;
- Music Business Support and Incubation;
- Increase Collaboration between Music Colleges and community;
- Maintain and improve communication within London’s Music Industry, community groups and City Council;
- Represent the London Music Community at music conferences such as CMW, NXNE, SXSW as necessary;
- Advocate Pay Standardization for Performing Musicians;
- Embrace and Encourage Diversity;
- Oversee organization conferences and conventions to bring educators worldwide to London, building on London’s current world class Music, Music Business and Production Education (Fanshawe, Western, OIART);
- Encourage and aid further development of music festivals in the downtown core;
- Explore synergies and integration at all levels - from the largest festivals to independents.

As a group we also request the task of developing, in conjunction with the city, a full job posting and job description for this position, and the ability to nominate selected members to participate in the interview process with potential candidates.

(See Appendix F: Toronto’s Job Description for Music Sector Development Officer)

3. Increase Live Music City Wide

Utilize available venues - parks, libraries, malls etc. to hire live music, both inside and outside the downtown core. Study existing community organizations who use London Music in their events and co-ordinate with them, fill in the gaps, utilize underused venues.
4. Enhance Audience Development and Engagement

Co-ordinate existing programs who visit public schools. Purpose is to create more music fans and get more music to young people. Give them a united voice and advocate on their behalf with the school boards. Facilitate additional funding and grants for these initiatives.

Study all bylaws that affect London's Music Industry - Consider for-profit and not-for-profit perspectives. Study tax issues, development fees etc. which affect the development businesses relating to London’s Music Industry. Explore the use of financial incentives to encourage development, including subsidies or tax breaks. Facilitate more integration of local music and buskers, remove obstacles associated with music events. Consider the need for more small performance spaces for upcoming artists in addition to larger festivals or productions.

6. Obtain Investment for Specific Implementation Strategies of LMIDTF Key Priorities

From public and private sources – explore with LEDC.

7. Future Music Presentation Spaces

The London Music Committee would like to be consulted and be able to give input when projects to enhance or build more music presentation spaces are enacted.

8. Co-ordinate and Disseminate Directories, Websites and Mailing Lists, Enhance the Music Resource Inventory

Make sure that information about musicians, shows and upcoming events is easy to access. Co-ordinate contacts lists and resources so that every performance has maximum coverage.

Enhance the inventory of all genres, organizations, venues, artists, music equipment rentals, etc. in addition to coordinating directories, websites and mailing lists.
Make it easy for publicists to reach all media (including radio and television, blogs etc.) by providing them a comprehensive local contact directory. Advocate a presence for London Music on commercial radio and television in the city and region.

The directories should ultimately be co-ordinated with the GIS system, a tool the city has to map locations. Please note this system could be co-ordinated with any directories.

9. Create a Marketing Strategy with Demographic Study - Increase Advertising

Develop a marketing strategy based on a study of the key demographics both in the immediate region and beyond. This could involve advertising outside the community, video boards, websites etc.

Study key values and strengths in order to develop a brand and messaging to differentiate London in the global market. Allow the initiatives time to develop and see what strengths emerge to build upon and promote.

It was agreed that Production and Music Education are already strengths which can be promoted immediately without substantial further study:

- Promote London as a Production Hub, featuring studios, engineers, producers and record labels.
- Encourage, co-ordinate and develop London’s existing strength as a production hub.
- Try to retain the production talent trained at Western, Fanshawe and OIART.
- Promote London as a Music Education Hub (Western, Fanshawe and OIART).

10. Support Music Tourism

Shift focus on culture and attraction of music tourists, co-ordinating with appropriate community organizations. focus messaging on music, similar to London’s sports tourism. Utilize directories and resources. Target “out of town” music consumers who drive an hour or more to attend London shows.

Actively try to relocate all types of music business to London – build on strengths of favourable cost of living and location. For example: A YouTube Developer similar to Maker Studios or a YouTube production centre (owned by Google).

12. More Music Residencies

Consider already successful musicians from out of town; an ambassador and mentor for the city, teaching workshops and attending functions for working and upcoming musicians. Utilize this position to develop London both artistically and in the music business.

Threats

Discussion of potential lost opportunities if a strategy is not created:

1. London will not elevate its profile as a Regional Cultural Centre. We do not wish to fall behind that of other communities who have adopted similar strategies (e.g. Kitchener, Hamilton).

2. Lost employment opportunities - Londoners need to understand the value of Music as an economic generator for our community.

3. Failure to secure future high tech opportunities – London is well positioned to be a leader as the music industry evolves into the digital space.

4. We will not be as vibrant and diverse community as we could be if we meet our full potential - as identified in the City of London’s 2011 – 2014 Strategic Plan.

5. Failure to develop and exploit London talent.

6. Inability to secure a portion of the identified $45M Ontario Music Fund Grant for eligible applicants.
Conclusion:

The music industry offers many benefits to the local economy. A strong music industry presents an opportunity to strengthen and embrace London's diversity and cultural identity, and it generates an opportunity to create jobs and attract investment.

To capitalize on these opportunities, the Model of Governance going forward is to create the new position of London Music Officer and/or Office. The London Music Officer and/or Office would continue to work with the London Music Committee, which would evolve from the London Music Industry Task Force. This committee could potentially be subdivided into several subcommittees augmented by members of the community, each focusing on specific tasks such as publicity, diversity, bylaws and regulations reviews etc. The London Music Committee might have resource representation from the City’s Corporate Investments and Partnerships Office, the City of London Culture Office, Tourism London, LEDC, Chamber of Commerce, Fanshawe College, Western, OIART, etc.

In sum, this report represents the start of a “London Music Strategy”; the high level initiatives which need to be built on by a London Music Committee co-ordinating with the London Music Officer and/or Office to identify implementation strategies, timelines and measures. These key priorities link back to London’s Cultural Prosperity Plan implementation and areas of focus needed to grow London’s economy.

The LMIDTF believes that the City of London should not accept these Key Priorities for altruistic reasons. The music industry should not be treated as a charity, nor as merely pleasant addition to the artistic culture of the city, though it can be both of those things. Rather, as music has proven to be a key economic driver (see Music Canada’s “Accelerating Toronto’s Music Industry Growth – Leveraging Best Practices from Austin, Texas” Report at: http://musiccanada.com/wp-content/uploads/2014/06/Accelerating-Torontos-Music-Industry-Growth-Leveraging-Best-Practices-from-Austin-Texas.pdf), we believe London must treat these key initiatives as absolutely vital to our city moving forward. A healthy music scene contributes heavily to the retention of a young and educated work force. It spurs the attraction of profitable high tech industries. It can enhance, and in special cases, define the identity of a city worldwide. Our ultimate goal should be no less, or we will be denying our potential.
Therefore, the LMIDTF not only suggests the creation of a London Music Officer and/or Office, but encourages council to consider this position and/or space every bit as essential to the future of our city as the Tourism and Economic Development offices. We wish to increase local skilled employment by attracting forward thinking music and media industries, and increase our profile with conferences of international significance. We want London to be recognized globally as the power in Music Education and Production that it has been for over 30 years. We want to entice fans from our immediate region and far beyond to see what musical treasures – in all genres and at all levels of development - London has to offer. We wish to nurture and ultimately shepherd the launch of musical careers which will define the listening habits of future generations. We wish to create a city where a diverse pulse of music is bred into the core of who we are.

Much of the necessary work can be accomplished on a volunteer basis; however we feel that proper leadership and coordination should originate from a full time position. Accomplishing this synergy of art, commerce, culture and identity will take a leader with vision, industry experience and remarkable skill. The position of London Music Officer requires a strong, connected candidate who understands both the music business and business itself. We believe even Toronto is ultimately selling this position short. This person may be a challenge to locate and not necessarily come cheap, but if our proposals are followed through properly we believe that every Londoner will reap the benefits for generations. Much like sports tourism has become a crown jewel for the city of London, so can music be if approached with similar levels of expertise and ambition. We call upon council to partner with us on our vision.

Appendix D: A Look at Other Cities and Their Music Initiatives

The below noted information highlights what other select cities have done/ or are doing in order to strengthen their local music scene:

Toronto:

The City of Toronto has established a 35 member “Toronto Music Industry Advisory Council” which provides a forum for discussion of opportunities and challenges, exchange of ideas, and development of the music industry.

Music Canada, which represents the major multinational music companies in Canada, who employ hundreds of Torontonians in their Canadian headquarters, commissioned a study in order to identify how Toronto can compete with cities like Austin, Texas, which advertises itself as the “Live Music Capital of the World”. “Accelerating Toronto’s Music Industry Growth, leveraging best practices from Austin, Texas” report demonstrates that in Austin, music is considered commerce, and the commercial music sector has been identified as a key component of the economy. In Toronto, according to the report, music is considered art and has been undervalued as an economic contributor. It outlines some of the challenges faced by recording studios and live music venues and advocates for a more business-friendly environment.
Some of the recommendations include:

1. Create a Music Industry Board to provide industry input through the Economic Development Committee;
2. Create a Music Industry Office to provide coordination across the various city departments that deal with issues relating to live music events and venues;
3. Create a Provincial Ontario Music Office;
4. Expand the Provincial Music Production Tax Credit to mirror the successful film and television tax credits;
5. Proactively pursue music tourism programs included a multi-day international music festival.

Hamilton:

The City of Hamilton has established a working group whose task was to engage the broader community and guide the development of the Hamilton Music Strategy. Hamilton wants to establish itself as a key music destination for musicians, music players, and music tourists.

The City of Hamilton has certainly taken the music initiative seriously, and they have produced “Hamilton Music Strategy” in order to advance the music sector.

Kitchener:

The City of Kitchener Economic Development has identified the Music industry in Kitchener as an economic development cluster that has the possibility of being developed to a much larger scale.

A Steering Committee for the Music Cluster was formed, consisting of people within the music community with strong ties to the industry, expertise in their own fields and an interest in strengthening the live music scene in the City of Kitchener. These included musicians, venue owners, producers, music equipment suppliers, music/arts organizations, music enthusiasts and software game developers.

“Music Works” is a City of Kitchener initiative to support, facilitate and accelerate the local music business cluster, specifically in actions to nurture an environment for community success in this important creative industry.
Peterborough:

Peterborough formed “Music Peterborough” (launched January 29th, 2013), a committee that exists to celebrate and promote Peterborough’s significance and role in the provincial, national, and international music scene. Their mandate: To promote Peterborough as a destination for music tourism; To promote Peterborough-related music professionals on a national and international platform; To provide access to professional development resources for music professionals, and promote Peterborough as a destination for recording, rehearsing, and other professional development activities; To support and promote Peterborough’s venues, festivals, and other activities related to live music.

Windsor:

The Windsor Essex Economic Development Corporation recognized the importance of the local music industry by pledging to help musicians access funds from the province's $45-million Ontario Music Fund (July, 2013). Mayor Eddie Francis cited Baltimore as a city to emulate when it comes to developing the music industry as an economic engine; he is expected to chair the corporation’s music cluster development committee.

Other global cities that have done some significant work to improve their music industry would include Melbourne, Berlin, Chicago (used the Austin report), Nashville, Seattle and New Orleans.

Appendix G: London Arts Council Proposal presented at City Council’s IEPC meeting in December 2013

Corporation of the City of London 300 Dufferin Ave
London, Ontario N6A 6H9
Attention: Investment and Economic Prosperity Committee

Dear IEPC Members,

The London Arts Council continues to strive to promote and grow the arts in London by exercising opportunities for various disciplines within our sector. In the last year the provincial government launched an initiative to strengthen and develop the support structures and systems that contribute to economic and cultural growth of the music industry in Ontario and provide for business plans that would impact local music industry.

The Ontario Music Fund was launched with a budget of 45 million dollars over three years to invest in Ontario’s Music Sector. The objectives of this stream of the OMF program are aimed at strengthening and stimulating growth in Ontario’s music companies and supporting this growing sector. The Fund is designed to drive activity and investment and to support Ontario’s music companies and organizations in expanding their economic and cultural footprints within Canada and around the world.

It is the London Arts Council’s intention to apply through the Music Industry Development Fund to strengthen London’s music industry through coordinated, joint initiatives that expand skills, business capacity and market share. Through our efforts we will promote further applications by London organizations to music funders including the OMF stream of funding. In the last year we have embarked on a professional relationship with Music Ontario to provide a regional office in London for meetings, professional development with London’s music sector and to bridge relationships with decision makers in Toronto and Ottawa.

Through our ongoing efforts the London Arts Council will work with the individuals, organizations and businesses to showcase London’s music and music sector; and support the development of resources and capacity of London’s diverse music community.

We look forward to your positive support of our proposal, should you require further information please do not hesitate to call upon us at any time.

Sincerely,
Andrea Halwa, Executive Director London Arts Council

Background: The London music industry includes a wide range of artists and entrepreneurs, who create, produce and market original music. The London music industry includes musicians, songwriters, record labels, managers, agents, concert promoters and music publishers. Ontario’s music industry is the largest in Canada with the highest revenues across the board—82% of Canada’s total. These revenues come from music publishing, sound recording studios, record production and distribution. Along with critical success for their artists, Ontario independent music companies are at the forefront of business innovation, in many cases responding to industry stressors by diversifying their revenue bases.

Economic Impact
Music Canada’s economic impact study determined that the Canadian recording industry (including the foreign-owned and independent, Canadian-owned companies) had a total economic impact output of $400 million in 2010. This includes just over $309 million of impact in Ontario. This economic impact differs from industry revenue, as reported by Statistics Canada, in that it represents only economic impact tied to expenditures, and is an estimation of activity based on input-output multipliers.

A 2013 report from the Ontario Chamber of Commerce (OCC) considers the province’s music industry to represent one of Ontario’s three top competitive advantages, along with mining and manufacturing. The OCC projects that continued public and private investment in the provincial music industry could generate 1,300 new jobs and $300 million in economic output. Currently, the Ontario music industry is working with the provincial government and other partners, including Ontario Media Development Corporation, on a live music strategy for Ontario. The aim of this strategy is to promote live music in Ontario in order to increase music tourism, boost visitor spending and increase economic impact.
Leveraging Funding
At the federal level, support to the sound recording industry comes through the Canada Music Fund, administered by the Department of Canadian Heritage. Other organizations and funds such as FACTOR, the Radio Starmaker Fund and federal and provincial arts councils, including the Ontario Arts Council, provide a variety of assistance programs to the Canadian music industry.

In May 2013, the Ontario Ministries of Tourism, Culture and Sport and Finance announced the creation of a proposed Ontario Music Fund, which would provide $45 million over three years to the Ontario music industry starting in 2013-14. The goals of this fund are to strengthen the Ontario music industry and to enhance Ontario's position as a global music leader.

The London Arts Council will be applying for funding from the Ontario Music Fund (deadline end of January 2014) to support the following activities:
